

CNC Appoints Andrei E. Rogov as Managing Director of Moscow Office

Munich, 27 January 2009: CNC - Communications & Network Consulting AG has secured the services of Andrei E. Rogov, a former Russian diplomat and international corporate affairs executive, to strengthen its service offering to Russian and international clients.

“With this appointment, our clients will benefit from CNC’s strengthened position in the important Russian market, and the cross-border synergies that flow from our growing global network,” said Dr. Christoph Walther, CEO and founding partner of CNC.

Rogov has worked in corporate communications and government relations for twelve years, following a distinguished ten-year diplomatic career in the Russian government, during which he worked in places as diverse as West Africa, San Francisco, and Washington, DC. His key areas of expertise are corporate and crisis communications, international and Russian government and media relations, brand marketing communications, and regulatory affairs. He joins CNC from the Cargill Inc. Moscow office, where he has been head of Corporate Affairs since early 2006.

“I am very pleased to be joining the growing global CNC family and look forward to heading the team of high-caliber professionals in Moscow,” said Rogov. “CNC is advising a number of high-profile clients in Russia, with a lot of business being conducted via our international network of offices in world cities such as New York, London and Tokyo.”

Rogov takes over from Joerg zu Dohna, Partner at CNC, who has led the company’s successful expansion in the Russian market since 2006, and is now relocating back to CNC’s headquarters in Munich.
